CONGRATULATIONS!

Thirty five years ago a woman lay dying in Bay St. Louis. The three physicians attending her called her grief stricken friends aside to break to them the terrible news that they had done everything in their power to save her, but to no avail. Her condition had so deteriorated that her imminent passing away was immediately and perfectly obvious to all.

Before closing on Tuesday by most anguish, the husband and father of five tiny children, down in despair, turned to God. Telling all his friends he prayed to St. Joseph to intercede promising that if Divine Providence would spare his wife he would do penance each year celebrate the Feast of St. Joseph giving him public honor and offering bread and wine to the poor.

As children, we remember hearing about the St. Joseph's Day Cakewalk in the Masonic Building across from the Courthouse and the parish, and about Mr. Montigni with the large black moustache who ran the shoe store, cobblers shop, grocery and - best of all - the donut stand. The jovial Mr. Montigni who would greet you with a deep laugh and a ripe apple, banana or bunch of grapes, or a peppermint stick, or cookies from one of the large square metal boxes of cookies from the grocery was loved by all.

For thirty three years Mr. Montigni faithfully carried out his promise. Each subsequent year has seen him publicly honor St. Joseph on his day by his sale of food and his brightening of the lives not only of the poor but also of many others of us who have been inspired by his lifelong devotion to his wife and to his religion.

Mrs. Montigni passed on some three years ago and shortly afterward Mr. Montigni was himself struck by an affliction from which he was not expected to recover and which caused him to lose one of his legs. His son, Russell, during his father's illness and to save his father's life made the same promise to St. Joseph that his father had made to save his mother's. So, for the past three years, the celebration has been shared by both father and son.

On St. Joseph's Day this week our congratulations and good wishes go to Mr. Montigni and his family whose religious and family devotion have been an inspiration to us all for so many years.

JUVENILE CODING HASN'T PAID

We loosely agree with an interesting member of judges of Juvenile Court who have begun meting out stiff sentences to young offenders who start low enforcement officers and courts with this "you can't do anything to me because I am under age" clause. We only do we agree with the judges giving them sentences or hard labor for major crimes, but we also agree with the late Texas judge who has opened his nose to the public and is still for naming the youthful lawbreakers in the press. His theory of parents being humiliated with public exposure of their progeny's misdeeds and thereby keeping a closer watch on their children seems to be a sound one.

Juvenile crime is definitely on the increase and has become a shameful national position. The fact that it is happening to kids who we called better houses has strengthened the circumstantial case theory. That leaves parent responsibility as a top candidate for the major concern. Making the minor offenders behind bars' sides may well lead to giving the kids the idea that they can get away with more serious crimes.
